He was standing right "on top" of the incident and saw everything. Inmate Bartlett walked back to his bunk and he asked Inmate Bartlett why he did that and Inmate Bartlett said, "I don't know." Inmate Bartlett and Inmate Denoewer had been arguing prior to the fight. Inmate Bartlett was at the water fountain and called for Inmate Denoewer to come up to the water fountain. The two of them (Inmate Bartlett and Inmate Denoewer) had been arguing for the past four or five months. Inmate Denoewer was not fighting back and had no fighting skills. He then saw everyone (Inmates in the dormitory) looking at the same area where the water fountain is located. He could see Inmate Bartlett and Inmate Denoewer at the water fountain, but could not actually see either of them throwing a punch. He did see Inmate Denoewer hit his buttocks on a bunk and then fall against the wall. Inmate Denoewer was trying to stop Inmate Bartlett from hitting him. In his interview dated May 12, 2008, Inmate Leroy Blake indicated the following:

Inmate Glenn Bartlett and Inmate Patrick Denoewer were arguing for awhile and then they started fighting. When Inmate Denoewer ran down the isle towards his bunk he separated them and told them to get away from his "rack." He told both Inmate Bartlett and Inmate Denoewer to get away from his "rack." He does not remember seeing Inmate Bartlett, but did tell an unknown inmate that was going to get the officer, that Inmate Denoewer [REDACTED] (Exhibit B-15)
